1.The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, 4-9, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Underwood et al for reasons set forth in paragraph 4 of the previous action.

2.Claims 1, 2, 4-9, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Duckwall, Jr et al for reasons of record as set forth in paragraph 5 of the previous action.

3.Applicant's arguments filed April 16, 2009 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's comments concerning Bowling et al are persuasive and this reference has been dropped from the rejection. However, comments directed to the 103 over Underwood et al and Duckwall, Jr et al are simply not persuasive. While the 102/103 over Underwood et al is no longer sustainable against the claims as previously submitted, a valid 103 still exists against the claims as amended. Underwood et al clearly teaches at column 4, lines 50+ and Example 1 the orienting of a HDPE blown film at drawdown ratios greater than 10:1. The fact that the reference discloses that other resins may also be made into films and stretched in the same manner can in no manner obviate this rejection. In fact, it is respectfully submitted that applicant's comments concerning this make no sense. If applicant means that the lack of teaching of the secant modulus is the reason why the claims cannot be obvious over Underwood et al, it is urged that such would have been inherent or obvious in the stretching as disclosed in the reference. Also, the 103 rejection over Duckwall, Jr et al has been maintained. While applicant submits that ample evidence has been provided in the instant specification for the non-obviousness of the instant drawdown ratio of greater than 10:1, it is respectfully urged that such is not so. Rather, the instant specification clearly teaches that the secant modulus is a parameter dependent on the drawdown ratio. While it may be true that to obtain a modulus of greater than 1 million, the ratio needs to be greater than 10:1, this merely constitutes that the secant modulus is a result effective variable readily determined through routine experimentation. One of ordinary skill in this art would expect that the secant modulus would increase as the degree of orientation—ie, drawdown ratio—increases, as long as the film does not break during the stretching. The terminal disclaimer has been approved so the double patenting rejection has been dropped.

4.THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
